

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "London Savoy". The script is fluid and cursive, with the first name "London" and last name "Savoy" clearly distinguishable.

There are many sides to the multifaceted R&B singer/songwriter, London Savoy, but her knack for storytelling through her music is the characteristic people love to experience the most. When it comes to singing and songwriting, London's lyrics, reflect of her sorrow and struggles, brings her caring, versatile and empowering soulful voice to the forefront for all to hear.

London is an individual who has triumphed beyond her circumstances. The lyrics she performs mirrors her life and is the reality for so many other men and women facing the same challenges she had while growing up. Through her music a voice will be given to those once silenced. In this day and time we allied that powerful voice of representation.

"I'm about empowering," said the Baltimore native. "I strive to use my music to be an influence to women and men everywhere; it's gritty but real. I represent anyone who has endured hard times in his or her life. Through my music I hope that someone will strengthen and overcome some of their life's obstacles."

London Savoy began singing in church at a young age and from that she later went on to be member of a girl group signed and managed by Mary J. Blige, "Just' Us", However, the girl group split up in 2013.

In 2017, London reemerged as a solo artist and continued to pursue her passion of R&B stardom full-time. She released her single "Same Language," with Para Music Group, The Orchard, and Sony in July 2017.

In 2018, London joined the Should, Could, Dream Tour which is a multi-city tour that takes an in-depth look at the achievement gap, student behavior, and the effects of mental health in the school system. In addition to being an artist on this tour In front of a sold out crowd at the MGM National Harbor, London played the leading role as Dorthy "Dotty" in the hit stage play, The GIZ. London amazed the audience with her charm and powerful vocals.

London Savoy, our solo female artist from the DMV is here to stay and change your life. Are you ready?

